Listen to Us

Would you like someone to come with you to meetings and help you say what you want?

Advocacy is another name for helping someone say what they want.

An Advocate is someone who can go to meetings and speak for you.

You can get an Advocate if:

- You sometimes need help to ask questions.
- You need help to say what you think and telling people what you want.

You sometimes need help to understand what is being said to you.

An Advocate can also find out things for you if you want them to.

We will match you with someone who will help you say what you want.

We don't share your personal information with other people unless you want us to.

We are 'independent'.

This means we are separate from Social Work and the Health Service.

We work for you.

Lomond & Argyll Advocacy Service is free of charge.
